Kendall is an associate with the firm's corporate practice group. He assists clients with a wide range of real estate, business, lending, and finance-related transactional matters, as well as with trademark work. Kendall takes pride in recognizing and assessing potential issues, highlighting practical solutions, and creative problem-solving. His diligent and holistic approach to his work allows him to always keep the client's end-goals in mind.

A former journalist, Kendall is a dedicated researcher and enjoys confronting and managing both unique and routine legal matters. A native Californian, Kendall attended the University of Iowa College of Law, where he served on the Journal of Corporation Law board, was a member of the university's national moot court team, and graduated with distinction.
